

Dilworth Sees No Rosy Picture

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Former Mayor Richardson Dilworth told a Chamber of Commerce meeting Thursday things aren't nearly as rosy in Pennsylvania as some forecasters would lead its residents to believe.

State industry has gone downhill every year since World War I, he charged at the 17th annual Forecasting Conference of the Chamber of Commerce of Greater Philadelphia.

He described the Commonwealth's public education system as lousy—"not much better than that of Alabama or Mississippi."

3 Girls Tunnel Under Red Wall

BERLIN (AP) — Three East German girls fled to the West through a 450-foot tunnel under the Berlin wall a few hours before Communist security agents discovered the underground passage and blew it up, West Berlin police reported Thursday night.

Dynamiting of the tunnel frustrated the hopes of at least 24 other persons who were about to flee to the West, sources said.

Rights Fight Starts Quietly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The civil rights fight that could be Congress in knots opened quietly Thursday with some genteel sparring between two elderly Democrats.

Rep. Howard W. Smith of Virginia, 80-year-old chairman of the House Rules Committee, and Rep. Emanuel Celler, 75, New York, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, provided a low-keyed preview of the coming struggle.

CIA Says Reds In Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Central Intelligence Agency spokesman said Thursday that Russia is in such deep economic trouble that Premier Nikita Khrushchev must have other programs to meet his expansion goals if he cannot get long-term credit from the West.

One of the statements by the CIA spokesman was that Russia's import requirements for chemical machinery and equipment would cost several hundred million dollars a year "and could be $2 billion in total."

Moscow Lauds Military Cut

MOSCOW (AP)—Moscow Radio on Thursday night welcomed President Johnson's proposal for a cutback in American military spending.

But it said: "One cannot assume that this is the beginning of the end of the arms drive. It is more a freeing of it."

The commentary, broadcast on the radio's home service, was the first official public reaction in the Soviet Union to the President's State of the Union message.

GOP Delegates Back Scranton

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican members of Congress from Pennsylvania endorsed Gov. William W. Scranton Thursday for the GOP presidential nomination and urged him to become an active candidate.

The statement urged the governor to become an active candidate before the Republican nominating convention in July and to permit his friends and supporters "to make proper overtures in his behalf."

McNamara, Goldwater Clash

Robert McNamara

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara accused Sen. Barry Goldwater Thursday of damaging the national security with a statement that America's long-range missiles are not dependable.

"Completely misleading, politically irresponsible, and damaging to the national security," was McNamara's retort to the Arizona senator's statement.

Goldwater, campaigning in New Hampshire for the Republican presidential nomination, told a news conference at Portsmouth that President Johnson's proposed cuts in defense spending mean a reduction of the manned bomber fleet.

Not Dependable

He said short-range missiles are reliable weapons but "our intercontinental missiles are not dependable."

Goldwater, a major general in the Air Force Reserve and a longtime congressional champion of the manned bomber's role in defense strategy, did not go into specifics, saying that is a security matter.

McNamara, a Republican, said in a statement issued at the Pentagon: "There is no information, classified or otherwise, to support the false implication that our long-range missiles cannot be depended upon to accomplish their mission."

Importance Stressed

"The importance of the long-range missiles to the defense of this country and the evaluation of their effectiveness by our leading military authorities is indicated by the strong support given by the Joint Chiefs of Staff to the missile program."

McNamara's statement was read to reporters by Asst. Secretary of Defense Arthur Sylvester.

Goldwater declined to comment on the defense secretary's statement when he arrived back in Washington. An aide who accompanied the senator on the flight back from New Hampshire said Goldwater would have no comment until he had a chance to study the McNamara statement.

Jet Pilot Senator

Goldwater, who has qualified as a jet pilot, subscribes to the contention of Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force chief of staff, that the intercontinental missile is an untried weapon as far as actual combat goes.

Goldwater told newsmen that the implication in Johnson's State of the Union message to Congress Wednesday was that the President appears to be "engaged in unilateral disarmament."

The President told Congress, Goldwater said, that "we are deliberately going to cut down on military strength because the Communists might regard it as provocative if we are too strong."

Protests Base Closing

The senator protested that the administration is closing out the B47 and B52 bombers without providing for any replacements. He contended that the Soviets are not ignoring the manned bomber as a future weapon.

McNamara has all but ended the B70 project, which was aimed at developing a new, long-range, supersonic-speed bomber as a future weapon.

Redistricting Bill Now Law

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton signed the legislative reapportionment bills into law Thursday with a pledge to defend them in the courts if necessary.

"They are good bills and will mean better representation for the Commonwealth," the governor said in a formal signing ceremony. He added:

"If they are challenged in the courts we will wage an all-out effort to defend them. Nobody knows what the federal courts will do since the Supreme Court has not set down guidelines since taking over the issue."

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled last year that federal courts have jurisdiction in tests of state legislative apportionment to guarantee equal population representation.

Court Test

A court test of the Pennsylvania law, approved by the legislature in special session last month, appears inevitable.

A taxpayers' suit filed in federal court last December sought to restrain the legislature from reapportioning under provisions of the state Constitution on grounds the provisions were in conflict with the U. S. Constitution.

While refusing to enjoin the legislature from acting, a three-judge federal court said the plaintiffs could amend their suit to challenge its constitutionality after it became law.

Reapportionment of the Pennsylvania House is the first since 1953 and of the Senate, the first since 1921.

The bills became law just 19 days before the first day for circulating nomination petitions for House and Senate seats under the new district setup.

Senate Changes

The Senate act will give one additional seat to Allegheny, Delaware and Montgomery counties. It makes them available by eliminating one of Luzerne County's two seats, shifting Lebanon County into a district with Schuylkill County, and by combining the present Jefferson - Indiana District with Armstrong County.

As part of the process, Butler joins with Lawrence County to form a new district and Beaver, now linked with Lawrence, becomes a single district.

The House will be cut from 210 to 209 seats. The law takes 13 seats from 13 counties and gives 12 of them to 8 other counties. The 13th is dropped.

Counties gaining representatives are Bucks 3 to 5; Chester 3 to 4; Montgomery 6 to 9; Delaware 7 to 9; Beaver 3 to 4; Franklin 1 to 2; Lancaster 4 to 5; and Westmoreland 5 to 6.

Counties losing seats are Philadelphia 39 to 35; Armstrong 2 to 1; Blair 3 to 2; Clearfield 2 to 1; Crawford 2 to 1; Fayette 4 to 3; Lackawanna 5 to 4; Luzerne 7 to 6; Schuylkill 4 to 3; and Somerset 2 to 1.

Scranton Cool To Recent Boosts

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton declared Thursday he is trying to discourage efforts to boost him for the Republican presidential nomination, saying: "I am not a candidate and I do not want people advocating organizational efforts on my behalf."

Asked if the discouragement has taken, Scranton replied: "I think it's beginning to."

Scranton made the comments at his weekly news conference in the state capital shortly before departing for Washington for a dinner with the Pennsylvania GOP Congressional delegation and an appearance at a reception of the Republican national committee.

In Washington Republican members of Congress from Pennsylvania endorsed Scranton for the GOP presidential nomination. They made public a statement urging Scranton to become an active candidate for the nomination.

At his news conference, Scranton touched on several items ranging from former vice president Richard M. Nixon to President Johnson's proposed slashing of the federal budget.

He said he was "very happy" that Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination and that he would be "delighted" if Nixon became a candidate. He described Nixon as a very fine person and one of the most knowledgeable men in the country.

Scranton, who has steadfastly maintained he is not interested in seeking the GOP nomination but would accept a sincere draft said there was no political significance in his Washington appearances. The congressional dinner had been scheduled for some time, he said.

Nixon Polls Recent Polls

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon says that as soon as he decides who the Republicans' strongest presidential candidate is, he personally "will make any sacrifice" to see that that man is nominated.

The former vice president would not say outright that this could mean he would accept the nomination, but it was his clearest indication to date that his repeated stand that he is not a candidate might be subject to change.

Nixon, who celebrated his 51st birthday Thursday, said in an interview he is willing to do everything necessary to see to it the Republicans nominate their most popular and best-qualified man to run for president this fall.

"I've been reading The AP polls and the Gallup polls and I'm trying to sense what the public demand is, and that of course will enter into my judgment as to who the strongest candidate is," Nixon said.

Both polls show a rising tide of sentiment among county Republican leaders and rank and file that Nixon should run again.

The latest Associated Press poll of county GOP chairmen, taken after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, showed Nixon gaining strongly on front-running Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

The most recent Gallup poll of grass-roots Republicans had Nixon two percentage points ahead of the Arizona senator.

Nixon said public demand for a candidate is an absolute essential, "but I don't go so far as to say a draft is always right."

Violence In Panama

PANAMA (AP) — Thousands of Panamanian students stormed the U.S.-controlled Canal Zone Thursday night on a flag-carrying raid and were repulsed by gunfire.

Two students were reported killed and 26 or more persons injured in the bloodshed stemming from rival attempts to fly the U. S. and Panamanian flags. The zone is Panamanian territory but under unending lease to the United States.

Panama quickly recalled its ambassador, Augusto Arango, from Washington.

Arango said in Washington he is leaving for Panama Friday, adding only: "I've been called home for consultation."

Canal Zone authorities in the late hours sent armored cars into the streets as thousands of Panamanians, mostly students, continued to mill about near the borderline.

The offices of Pan American Airways were wrecked by an angry crowd after the students came streaming back from the Canal Zone.

Solis, emerging from the Cabinet meeting, put the blame for the trouble squarely on Gov. Fleming and Washington.

"This affair of the flag is due solely to the senseless order of the governor of the Canal Zone to haul down the U.S. flag so as not to have to fly the Panama flag. The government of Panama puts the responsibility for this on the governor of the Canal Zone and the government of the United States for whatever may happen."

The flag-raising issue flared up Tuesday when several hundred American students ceremoniously raised the Stars and Stripes in front of Balboa High School in the Canal Zone.

Zone officials lowered the flag, enforcing Fleming's Dec. 31 directive specifying joint display of U.S. and Panamanian flags at 16 locations but no flags in front of the schools.

After officials left, the students again raised the flag. The movement spread to other schools Wednesday.

Foreign Minister Solis, after a Cabinet meeting hurriedly called by President Roberto Chiari, denied Washington reports that Panama had asked

FBI Seeks Man For Area Frauds

By GIL MURRAY Daily Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — A man who called himself Tony Russo while operating in the Stroudsburg area and who has left a trail of fraudulent dealings from Florida to Stroudsburg is the object of a search by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Frank Blachet, agent in charge of the bureau's Scranton office, said yesterday the FBI is looking for Anthony Romano, a former East Stroudsburg resident who fled from Florida in 1962 to escape prosecution on charges of fraud by wire.

Romano left Stroudsburg owing businessmen and professional people more than $100,000. Apparently none of these people have filed legal complaints against him.

Romano, who used the alias of Russo while in this area, was last heard from during December when he bilked a Paterson, N. J., investment firm out of $15,000.

When he first appeared in Stroudsburg in 1962 his first manipulation was to lease the Guys and Dolls Billiard Parlor on Main St. from Don Summa, an East Stroudsburg Barber and businessman.

Latest In Equipment

He outfitted the parlor with the latest pool equipment and in the process stuck the M. Blatt Co. of Trenton, N. J., the suppliers, with a $6,000 bill and a $4,000 bad check drawn on the East Stroudsburg National Bank.

Sometime around the end of July, Romano left Stroudsburg and went to Wilkes-Barre, where the Blatt Co. had him arrested on July 27.

He was brought before Blakeslee Justice of the Peace, Daniel Kerrick, on charges of issuing a worthless check, and was released in $4,000 bail for a hearing on Aug. 1, 1963.

William Treon, a Mt. Pocono contractor, pledged his Mt. Pocono home as the bail. Romano never appeared for the hearing and if he isn't apprehended soon Treon is in jeopardy of losing $4,000, according to Kerrick.

One of Romano's major local swindles reportedly involved a local contractor and $20,000. A reliable source said Romano bought an option on land, located on Rt. 191 near Godfrey's Ridge.

He informed his many contacts in Stroudsburg that he had several large chain stores interested in locating stores in a shopping center he was planning to build on the land.

$20,000 For $200

He then sold the option, that he had purchased for $200 for a reported $20,000, the source said. Romano reportedly owned two sumptuous homes, one in Seiseta and the other in Bushkill. Both were sold at sheriff's sales, with the realtor involved losing money.

An area well driller is owed $2,300 for a well he drilled for Romano at his Bushkill house.

The Beacon Loan Co. in Stroudsburg and the Stroudsburg National Bank said they also were fleeced. When he left he owed Beacon $467.35 and the bank an undisclosed sum.

It is reported that he also owes several Stroudsburg attorneys money for legal assistance in deals they did not realize were phony.

Summa said that he understands Romano, on three separate occasions, sold his (Summa's) building to people who thought Romano owned the premises.

Summa said he knows an Easton man who paid $12,000 for a building Romano did not own.

From all reports Romano was a confident man of great ability. Some of the people who were talked out of money actually had kind words for him.

Michael Galesi, a partner in the Galesi Real Estate Investments Co. in Paterson, Romano's latest victim, said yesterday, "He could have gotten much more money if he wanted it. We would have gladly given it to him."

Galesi said he was a confident man "for the books" and could have cheated his company out of $50,000 instead of the $15,000 he actually took.

In this deal Romano talked the investment firm into promoting one of his reputed inventions. This was the same mode of operation he used in Florida.

Power From Air

There he talked individuals into putting up $35,000 to market a reputed power-pack that got its power from the air.

According to the FBI Romano was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., May 18, 1927. He weighs 160 pounds, has a dark olive complexion, brown eyes and black hair.

He often wears sun glasses, both indoors and out, and should be approached with caution because he is quick tempered and emotionally unstable.

Anyone with information about Romano should call the FBI in Scranton or Allentown.

Clock Ticking For Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate tax writers, reversing a House action, voted Thursday to keep gasoline taxes and license fees as income tax deductions. But they agreed to repeal of the 4 per cent credit now allowed on dividend income.

The action by the Senate Finance Committee topped a busy day in which the senators stepped up work on the $11-billion tax cut bill, voting on one provision after another. But there was no indication that President Johnson's Feb. 1 target date for passage would be achieved.

"The clock is ticking," Johnson said, "and delay on a tax cut keeps millions of dollars out of the economy."

U.S. Approves $829,124 For Eastburg Housing

WASHINGTON — Fred B. Rooney, of Bethlehem, Democratic U. S. Representative, announced yesterday federal approval of an $829,124 loan for 57 low income public housing units in East Stroudsburg.

It will provide the first public housing for the elderly in Monroe County.

Rooney said the loan would be made by the Community Facilities Administration of the Housing and Home Finance Agency to the Housing Authority of Monroe County.

Charles T. Van Seiver, executive director of the authority, said 40 units for the elderly would be built on Day St. in East Stroudsburg and 16 units will be added at the Normal St. public housing project. One unit is for maintenance space. Rooney said the average cost per unit is $11,096.

Redevelopment Go Ahead

King Beers, executive director of the Redevelopment Authority of Monroe County, said the approval opens the way for relocation of 16 families in the Lincoln Ave. redevelopment area and release of federal funds for the $1.7 million project.

"This is another major step forward in the redevelopment program," Beers said. "We could not get money for the Lincoln Ave. project until we definitely had a place to move some of the families now living there."

He said the present 100 low income public housing units in the Stroudsburgs have enough room for people from the separate N. Courtland St. redevelopment project also under way in East Stroudsburg.

There are now 44 units on Normal St., East Stroudsburg, and 28 on North 5th St. and 28 on Garden St. in Stroudsburg.

Early Approval

Van Seiver said he had not expected approval until March, but added that architect's plans by Kinker, Kiefer and Rake may not be finally approved for a year and the new units may not be open until the fall of 1965.

"The elderly population in Monroe County is growing very fast," Van Seiver said. "We will have no trouble getting tenants."

Elderly people are defined by Social Security standards as women over 62, men over 65 and disabled over 50. To be eligible they must have annual income under $3,000 for one or two people; $3,200 for three or four people; or $3,500 for four or five.

Commissioners Happy

Stuart Pipher, Democratic Monroe County commissioners, said, "This is fabulous! Since I helped organize the Senior Citizens Club of Monroe and Pike Counties, sponsored by the Central Labor Union, I am pleased to see that something is being done to help them."

Stanley Rader, Republican chairman of the commissioners, said, "This is a wonderful thing for East Stroudsburg, and for the elderly people in the county. The redevelopment projects which can now proceed, will lower taxes in East Stroudsburg."

John M. Price, Republican county commissioner, said: "I am very pleased that this money has been allocated, but now it is our challenge to provide homes in a happy situation for those folks who will be asked to move. I am particularly concerned with the Day St. development for senior citizens."

"At this point in their lives we are asking a great deal of them. It is difficult to move out of your house."

By contrast, England's couturier Fortique believes that soon women in uniforms such as nurses, waitresses, will wear

'Wear Your Phone Dress, So I Can Keep In Touch'

NEW YORK (AP)—The teenagers' ideal dress—one with a built-in telephone—was forecast here Thursday as a fashion probability seven years hence.

Thought - recording earrings, heating and cooling units, radios and a combination shoe and stocking also may be part of the female wardrobe in 1970 or '71, spoke Kirk Douglas said.

He spoke at a crystal ball-gazing luncheon arranged as a part of the weekend spring press preview program.

Seven well-known international designers contributed their predictions, but among these the heroine of the American husband will be designer Mollie Parris. She created one black costume which, by interchanging the units, can be worn seven days without looking the same way twice.

Italian couturier Federico Fortique believes that soon women in uniforms such as nurses, waitresses, will wear short trousers and overboots; and that movable lens-eyes will replace spectacles.

Contending that extra-sensory perception and astrology will have a greater influence on our lives in the years hence, Ines Svensson of Sweden dreamed up those thought-recorder earrings, Simonetta of Italy and Paris cooked up Robinhood-like shoe-stockings to be worn with skirts five inches above the knees.

The telephone, pinned to a suit lapel, is Spanish designer Elio Berhanyer's contribution to loquacious adolescents.

He, Bud Kilpatrick of California and Sybil Connolly of Ireland are convinced that clothes will be temperature-controlled with transistors.

By contrast, England's couturier John Cavanagh predicts women will don Jersey knickers and Grecian cross-draped topers for work and play in seven years.

RFK: Kennedy Instilled Confidence

WASHINGTON (AP)—Robert F. Kennedy has given his first public assessment of the late John F. Kennedy's major contribution to the world. In a words of confidence.

During an interview in which he also disclosed he will remain attorney general until the November election, Kennedy, 38, said of his assassinated brother: "He restored the confidence of the people in themselves and in their ability and their ideals and their future—particularly, perhaps, the younger people."

"He equally restored that same confidence in people in other countries in the United States and its people."

"And that's why, you see, there was such a strong reaction to his death in the United States and abroad—and even behind the Iron Curtain."

Will Aid Johnson

Tanned and relaxed after a skiing vacation in the West, Kennedy said he will do anything he can to help President Johnson win election this year. He was the chief engineer of his brother's successful 1960 drive to the Democratic nomination—over Johnson—and the presidency.

"I'll be available to work in the campaign," Kennedy said. "Nobody's said anything to me about it yet, but I'll do whatever anybody—the President or the Democratic National Committee—feels will be helpful."

He appeared pleased that a recent Associated Press poll of Democratic county chairmen had shown him to be a top favorite for the vice-presidential nomination. But he would not speculate on his plans.

"My one interest now is being attorney general," he said. "I don't know what I'm going to do when that's over."

And if Johnson should invite him to accept the second place on the ticket?

"Well, I'll just have to go back to what I said before," Kennedy insisted quietly. "I don't know what I'll do after I leave here."

"I could go teach. I could run for office in Massachusetts. Or

I could go into business or private life."

Kennedy was enthusiastic when reminded of recent hints that Johnson favors Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver—Kennedy's brother-in-law—for the vice-presidential nomination.

"He's a very able figure," Kennedy said. "He turned in one of the outstanding jobs of President Kennedy's administration in directing the Peace Corps. He would certainly be qualified for the job."

Rights Awareness

Questioned about the national civil rights situation as compared to that of one year ago, Kennedy said:

"I think there's more of a feeling now in the country that something needs to be done. There's a greater awareness that people are being treated unjustly. A year ago, people weren't thinking about it so much. They were pushing it to the backs of their minds."

"My feeling is that there still is a great problem in the South—but I think many of the more urgent problems are in the North, where they haven't been recognized yet."

It was suggested that Kennedy—already the author of two books—might be planning to write one about his brother.

"Not just now," he said. "Sometime, maybe, but not now."

The governor's office said Horst's assignment would be to "direct efforts in the field of agribusiness development."

People In Spotlight

N-15 pilot Joe H. Engle shot to the edge of space in his rocket plane this week and once again proved mind controls matter.

After taking off from Edwards Air Force Base in California the pilot found himself with instrument failures that left him with fewer aids than old barnstorming pilots. Engle even had to shut off the black box of "brains" — the electronic auto-pilot.

Though he hit 3,716 miles per hour, he had to use flying skills he learned as an "old-fashioned" pilot. He landed safely.

Miss Reis charges the magazine maligned her in its Oct. 26 issue. The former dancer said the article appeared without her consent and will hurt the sale of her impending biography.

Miss Reis is currently awaiting retrial on a charge of conspiracy in the burglary of the John B. Rich home in Pottsville in 1958.

Stanley Johnson, an Idaho miner, is glad to be warm and talk to people again.

The miner was rescued this week from a 12 by 6 foot underground cell he was trapped in for 27 hours. Rescuers drilled into the side of the tunnel that was Johnson's sanctuary, then pulled him to safety — from the lead and copper mine.

He was cold and lonely but considered in good condition.

Dr. Joseph Adlestein of Camp Hill, Pa., was named this week to the newly created post of Deputy Commissioner of Mental Health.

The position pays $22,500 a year.

Senator Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, has fired a blast at the Central Intelligence Agency. He criticizes "the unbridled and unchecked actions" of the CIA.

The senator urges creation of a special congressional committee to supervise top-level secret government activity.

He told the Senate this week that the CIA has been meddling and interfering in national policies and "acting as a law unto itself."

Senator Everett Dirksen, R-Illinois, believes that a limit on debate would "impale and destroy the flexibility of the Senate."

Tomorrow a proposal will be offered to the Senate which would restrict debate for three hours each session to the bill or subject called for action.

County Okays $15,000 In U. S. Bonds

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County commissioners yesterday voted to purchase $15,000 in U. S. Savings Bonds, Series H, with surplus from the Monroe County Employment Retirement Fund.

The board also designated East Stroudsburg National Bank as depository of the general fund; The First Stroudsburg National Bank depository for the liquid fuel accounts and Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co. for all other accounts.

County Solicitor Russell Mervine was told to draw up a resolution listing the amount of securities the banks must deposit with the federal reserve so the accounts can be opened.

The commissioners, for the third time, resubmitted a request for an additional $4,500 for Paradise Twp. from the liquid fuel account. The request is an addition to what Paradise already has received. The money is to be used for a road connecting the Pocono Mountain Joint High School with a road between Swiftwater and Henryville.

Pipher requested the chief clerk contact LeRoy Dengler of Mt. Pocono and John McFarland, chairman of Pennsylvania Aeronautical Commission in Harrisburg, and arrange for a meeting to discuss the Pocono Mountains Airport in Mt. Pocono.

Pipher said he wanted to discuss the entire project of the local airport so he could determine what is needed to complete the project or if it is a waste of time and money to continue the project.

In other business, Ron Dailey, representative of Johnson Printing Co., discussed changes in voting laws.

He said the two major areas where changes have been made are in the civilian and military absentee requests forms. He did not have a sample of the form but did show the commissioners a rough draft.

Place Order
The commissioners then placed an order for 600 civilian and 300 military forms. They also ordered primary election sets. The sets contain instructions for the local board of election, the penalties, voters certificates and the election board manual.

The commissioners also took action in several cases under the jurisdiction of Miss Elizabeth Martin, probation officer; approved the moving of a telephone in the treasurer's office and the purchase of a postal scale for the treasurer's office.

Also, to get a light for the Monroe County Auditor. They requested a desk model. Approved Monroe County.

Small Hails Borough's Progress Last Two Years

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg Mayor Joseph Small delivered a "state of the borough" address to the Stroudsburg Rotary Club yesterday.

He reviewed accomplishments of the borough council in the past two years and called for action on a number of civic projects.

The full speech will be printed on tomorrow's editorial page.

"We have made much progress in the past two years. I think there was more progress made and more done for our borough than in the history of our town," Small asserted.

"This was all done without any increase in taxes in our borough," he added, "and there are a lot of things we need to do, but I pledge to you that we are not going into debt."

Action Urged
Small urged:

1. A borough fix-up, clean-up, paint-up project.

2. A complete change of the lighting system at 5th and Main Streets. "This is a dangerous situation."

3. Small signs at the entrances to Stroudsburg.

4. An ordinance to keep tractor-trailers off Main St. after noon. "Anytime you go up Main St. in the middle of summer and see a traffic problem, use it."

Chief Assessor C. A. Nauman's request to send letters to district assessors so the occupation books could be completed.

Nauman also reported that the assessor in Barrett Twp., Mrs. Seese, has resigned to take a civil service post and there is now a vacancy in the township for an assessor.

He also reported a request from Stroud Twp. supervisors for the appointment of four assessors in the township. The request, from Harold Albert, said the township was to large for one person and suggested each voting district have its own assessor. The board tabled action.

Nauman also questioned whether William Reaser can hold the assessor's position in Stroudsburg's Fifth Ward and also be chief clerk for the county commissioners.

Russell Mervine will search the law to see if there is a conflict in positions and report to the board Monday.

The board also referred Paul Young to his lawyer. Young appeared and requested a private land sale of property he believed was owned by the county.

Mervine said he would search the county tax sale laws and make a recommendation to the board either to hold a tax sale this year or wait until a later date.

usually there is a tractor-trailer involved which is loading and unloading."

5. A borough emergency squad within the fire department, possibly a joint venture with East Stroudsburg and Stroud Township.

"A small truck could be used for emergencies such as the unfortunate drowning about a year ago at the corner of 5th and Main Streets."

6. A municipal parking lot between McMichael's Creek and the Thruway or a park and playground there.

County Heads To Welcome Appointments

STROUDSBURG — Stanley Rader, chairman of the new Monroe County board of commissioners, yesterday invited officials, citizens, and anyone interested in speaking to the commissioners to make appointments in advance.

He said visitors to the commissioners' meetings would be heard between 11 a.m. and noon and between 1:30 and 4 p.m. on Mondays and Thursdays — regular commissioners' meeting days.

Rader said that anyone is welcome, but urged citizens to make appointments with William Reaser, chief clerk for the commissioners, at the courthouse.

"We are trying to make it easier for people to see us," Rader said. "This way, they won't have to sit on their hands for hours until we are free. We are also giving them the opportunity to specify how much time they want with us."

Rader said that in emergencies, the commissioners would try to see visitors right away.

7. Reopening of Stokes Mill swimming hole by the Stroudsburg Municipal Authority.

Past Progress
The mayor detailed the following projects started or finished "for the benefit of the entire community."

1. A $200 across-the-board salary increase for borough employees with Blue Cross and Blue Shield payments assumed by the borough.

2. The change on Main St. from parallel to angle parking added 33 parking spaces and stopped speeding, with no more accidents.

3. The borough induced the County Park Commission to take over ownership and operation of the First Ward Playground between 2nd and 3rd Streets.

4. A Stroudsburg Planning and Zoning Board was set up. "I think we need a limited form of planning and zoning."

Thruway Lights
5. Lighting of exits and entrances of the Interstate Rt. 80 Thruway in the borough will begin as soon as weather permits.

6. A new burning ordinance, coordinated with East Stroudsburg's to avoid confusion, was passed.

7. The borough purchased a new police car, new roller, dump truck with snow plow and $25,000 fire department pumper.

8. Alternate side parking to ease street cleaning and snow removal was introduced, and perhaps should be extended to the whole borough.

9. The state helped repave West Main St. The borough paid for new curbs and gutters.

10. A barge ordinance was passed, and well received.

11. Traffic lights at 4th and McConnell Streets where 83 per cent of borough intersection accidents occur, have been ordered.

12. The Shade Tree Commission has planted several trees and trimmed or repaired others.

13. The lease of Stroudsburg Borough Playground was renegotiated with the Stroud Union School District for 25 years.

One Hurt As Truck Rams Car

MINISINK HILLS — Samuel Jones, 45, of Cresco was injured yesterday at 6:10 a.m. when his car was struck by a truck on Interstate 80 near the paper mill bridge in Minisink Hills.

Jones suffered a broken leg and possible broken ribs. He is reported in good condition at the General Hospital of Monroe County.

State Police from the Stroudsburg substation said Jones, traveling south, skidded out of control on an icy curve, spun around and stopped beside the highway, facing west.

Thrown From Car
A southbound truck, operated by Clifford R. Kintner, 59, of 105 Crystal St., East Stroudsburg, skidded and hit the right front of the car. Jones was thrown out of the car.

Police said Jones and a passenger, William Hillard, 62, of E. Second St., East Stroudsburg, were on their way to work in Washington, N.J., when the accident occurred.

Hillard was not injured.

Nielsen Quits LCB Position

HONESDALE — Atty. Louis B. Nielsen Jr., has resigned his post as assistant attorney general assigned to the Liquor Control Board. The resignation will be effective today. He was appointed to the position Sept. 16.

Nielsen had served as district attorney for Wayne County for nearly 12 years when he resigned in order to accept the assistant attorney general job. He plans to devote his entire time to his private law practice.

For 1964 Operating Expenses Barrett Twp. To Borrow $25,000

CANADENSIS — Barrett Township Supervisors last night voted to borrow $25,000 for operating expenses during 1964.

It was reported that the fire company account carried a balance of $7,893.43, while the state fund showed a balance of $89.08. However, a $12,400 deficit appeared in the general fund.

Roger Lindsey, chairman of the supervisors, agreed after a long discussion with residents at a meeting in the Barrett Township Elementary Center to "consider the effect street lights would have on the 1964 budget."

"If we sit back and don't include street lights where we will be in 30 years? We will begin small. This does not say that we are putting on a tax or that we will install the total number of lights recommended all at once," he said.

The discussion on street lights began when Mrs. Russell Brush, representative of the Barrett Community Club, recapped the report and recommendation of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. in Stroudsburg.

A total of 105 lights, mercury vapor type, would cost the township $4,500 per year for a ten-year period.

Broken down on a taxpaying basis, average taxpayers would pay $1.75 to $2.00 per year.

"These figures," he said, "are based on the figures from the Monroe County Assessors office, which shows Barrett Township real estate evaluation at $8 million with a $2 million assessment on Buck Hill Falls Co. and Skytop Lodge, Inc.

The remaining resident taxpayers would pay the smaller amount.

In other business, Lindsey questioned the manner in which the township purchases insurance and suggested putting it out for bid.

He also asked L. M. Caruthers, secretary-treasurer, to get facts and figures on purchasing gasoline on bids.

The Supervisors authorized payment of bills totaling $3,339.25, which will be paid from the money available in the $25,000 loan.

"This loan," Lindsey pointed out, "is available for use. We will pay interest on the amount we use not on the total sum."

"We will pay the loan out of the $46,000 taxes due this year," he said.

Police estimate damage to the tractor-trailer at $2,000.

Carl Savor, supervising principal of East Stroudsburg Area Schools, last night said, "We had one school bus with only a few children passengers delayed by the accident. The driver saw it would be quite some time before the road was open and he turned around and took the children home."

State Police said Brehm was traveling down a grade and while passing over an icy spot his tractor-trailer began to skid.

The rig struck the embankment on the west side of the highway, jack-knifing and blocking both traffic lanes until 11 a.m.

West End Phone Wall

The West End Lions Club is performing a service for all of Monroe County by proposing and urging elimination of the toll charge for telephone calls from the West End into the Stroudsburg area.

The Commonwealth Telephone Co., which operates exchanges in part of the West End of the county, and Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania, which runs interlocking exchanges in the Stroudsburgs, Delaware Water Gap, Bushkill, Cresco, Mt. Pocono and Pocono Lake have agreed to make the change.

But they want a strong vote of approval from the residents and subscribers of the Saylorburg exchange which serves the West End communities of Saylorburg, Snyder'sville, Brodheads-ville and parts of Hamilton, Ross and Chestnut Hill Townships.

The strongest argument for elimination of the toll charge is that it will bring the West End closer to the rest of Monroe County. This would benefit West End residents and businessmen as well as their friends and customers in the Stroudsburg area.

M. F. Weiss Sr., a member of the West End Lions Club committee working with the phone company and a prominent West End businessman, puts the argument this way:

"For many years people in the West End of Monroe County have felt they have not been a part of the county and it is believed that the telephone is one of the reasons for the invisible barrier. Now the chance to knock this barrier down is at hand."

The present toll charge of 18 cents a call would be removed and 25 cents would be added to the residential telephone monthly charge. It would require only two calls a month to the Stroudsburg area to make this charge a bargain.

First reports of the post-card poll of 1,043 customers in the Saylorburg exchange are very encouraging. All but 50 of the first 596 cards received by the phone company were in favor of the change. Already 62 per cent of those affected have voted yes.

But the West End Lions Club and Commonwealth Telephone Co. would like all the customers to answer, and would like all of them to support the move.

The change would be good for the economy and convenience of people in the West End and all over the county. We strongly support the move and congratulate the West End Lions Club for its leadership.

The Christmas Spirit

They are tearing it down now, putting it in crates and storing it away. Christmas is now officially over in the Stroudsburgs because Mr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Urban of Berwick Heights, East Stroudsburg, are taking down their fantastic holiday display.

Thousands of adults and children enjoy their well-lit Santa's Workshop, complete with elves, reindeer running on the roof, lighted trees, horse and sleigh, and children carolers with a howling dog.

And children never forget the candy canes—3,500 of them—given out by Mr. and Mrs. Santa dressed in appropriate red and white and meeting them as they go by in cars.

The Urbans have gained a wide reputation for their Christmas decorations and have given wonder and delight to many children.

Their selfless contribution to the Christmas spirit in the Stroudsburgs should not be forgotten when all the lights come down.

Comment Of The Day

"Everywhere today there is widespread curiosity about Governor William Scranton of Pennsylvania, which makes him the betting favorite among some of the most knowledgeable GOP leaders."

—From a Wall Street Journal report on Republican presidential candidates suggesting that the two announced candidates, Goldwater and Rockefeller, may kill each other off, opening the way for Scranton or Nixon as compromise choices.

Twain Did Meet

The Pennsylvania Story

By Mason Denison
HARRISBURG — Reporter's Notebook:

Legislative Grins And Frowns — When Governor Scranton presented his billion-dollar-plus fiscal blueprint for Pennsylvania for the coming 1964-65 fiscal year this week, the reaction of lawmakers on the two different sides of the aisle proved a most interesting study in contrasts.

Almost without exception those on the Republican (administration) side in both House and Senate were rather pleased, comfortable, fat — cat grins of contentment — thinking of course in terms of the reaction of lawmakers on the two different sides of the aisle proved a most interesting study in contrasts.

On the other hand, opposition Democratic lawmakers while obviously pleased with the no-new-tax report that glowed in front of them on their desks were wary of the whole thing, feeling that the "glowing" picture was more the result of some fast paper shuffling than anything else. At the same time they were obviously irked — from a political strategy standpoint — to find the first year of the new Republican administration running in what seemed, at first glance at least, to be excellent financial shape. . . . In actuality it was this lack of any good, sound political cause celebre (for their cause) that left anti-administration Democratic lawmakers mumbly, grumbling and frowning.

As one Democratic lawmaker in the House complained after the budgetary presentation: "It would seem, at first glance at least, that those nuts in the front office left us Democrats with doggone slim pickings in the way of campaign material!"

Moving With The Times — When Governor Scranton returned to his office on Capitol Hill on Monday after a restful holiday vacation, he really didn't have to move into the hall when he found his big desk missing! The desk wasn't there on his return, of course, because it was removed during his absence when a complete refurbishing and redecorating of his personal office was started. . . . It will still be a week or two before the project is completed and the royal gubernatorial desk is returned.

Meanwhile, is the Governor forced to use a couple of orange crates for his elbow-resting chores? . . . Not at all! — Mrs. Scranton's desk (she maintains a "liaison headquarters room" here in the Main Capitol Building) has been moved into the Governor's Office!

QUICK PICKUPS — A group of former high school buddies of Bill Schoonover is making plans to honor the Syracuse University back and recent acquisition of the Cleveland Browns of the National Professional Football League.

Davey O'Connor, ex-Stroud Union High fullback, will head a group of classmates who will set up a testimonial dinner for Schoonover.

O'Connor hopes to gain support from many of the area's athletic fans and organizations that deal directly with sports at Stroud Union.

Ben K. Williams, former head of the Republican Party in Monroe County and a state figure in politics, has left for Florida for his annual vacation.

State Demos Wary

Parade Show Upcoming — This Sunday Governor and Mrs. Scranton will make the annual gubernatorial pre-opening tour of the State Farm Show due to open here Monday — with the more curious wits around Capitol Hill wondering whether another "laff shot" (photo) will emerge from this gubernatorial tour similar to that of a few years ago when then Governor Lawrence was caught toppling from a milk stool as he tried to milk a cow.

The Lawrence stool-toppling shot went over with great jst (Mr. Lawrence took it in equally great stride) drawing nationwide attention. . . . A similar (unplanned) shot may be upcoming this Sunday — but of all times in this presidential election year?

Saying It In Ten Words! — The "speed" with which government moves sometimes seems costly — at least to this (obviously) most ignorant taxpayer.

Gloating over the "Daily Register" of the State Auditor General (covering certain bills forwarded to the Auditor General for payment approval) we ran across this (petty) item the other day:

From the Department of Public Instruction for payment to Western Union covering "Telegrams from Dr. Boehm (Charles H., State Superintendent of Public Instruction) for month of November, 1963 — $1337.59."

Better Care For Patients

By Lester L. Coleman, M. D.
Liberated from the restricted confines of dedicated cardiac care, the science of nursing has emerged as the amalgamation of the art and science of the healing of the total human being.

For years, the criterion of a good hospital nurse was the efficient completion of the myriad chores within an allotted period. Unfortunately, that period was an extended one of 10 to 12 hours of relentless, compelling scheduled obligations.

The duties covered a wide range: Medication supervisor, massage, flower arranger, chart navigator, injection giver, waitress, battle board for the hostility of overzealous, unhappy patients, the bearer of every conceivable responsibility that could be placed on an overworked body.

Different Now
Today, a lightly cornered and a meticulous recording of temperature, pulse and respiration are no longer the accepted indexes of nursing accomplishment.

Medical and nursing schools have embarked on expansive programs designed to broaden the nursing horizon. Studies of anatomy, physiology, bed care, and medicine dispensing have been augmented by studies in psychology insight and social awareness. The total rehabilitation of the total patient has become nursing's objective.

By devoting her energies to enlarging the scope of the art of nursing, Frances Cooke Macgregor, a social scientist at the Cornell-New York Hospital School of Nursing, has become an outstanding proponent of this concept. At that school, the nurse-patient relationship is enriched by the training of nurses in all areas of social psychology and human behavior.

Today's nurse is an indisputable life-supporting element in the health team. She is involved in all problems of illness and rehabilitation.

Picked up a copy of the 465-page book, "The Banker," at the Library the other day on the 10 cent per week shelf.

This is the story of the tycoon of high finance in N.Y., coons of former in a battle between the savings banks and the commercial banks for the savings of the public.

However, the author, Leslie Waller, introduces a number of interesting assignments in apartment bedrooms, hotel bedrooms and motel bedrooms.

This all adds a dimensional aspect to high finance which makes interest rates (high or low) purely academic as far as my reading was concerned.

No non-metropolitan banker should be without this book. . . . If only to see how haute monde get along.

The Allen-Scott Report
Quiet Viet Major

WASHINGTON — The man to watch in the churning power struggle in South Vietnam's ruling military junta is little-known Major General Mai Huu Xuan (pronounced Soon).

While adroitly staying in the background and out of the headlines, Xuan was the prime mover and the big gainer in the latest reshuffle within the junta that stripped ambitious and grand-standing Major General Ton Thai Dinh of control of the III Army Corps that dominated Saigon. How restless and strutting Dinh takes this setback remains to be seen. He may have to like it whether he does or not. He may have no alternative.

Xuan may have left him none. Under the new set-up, Xuan not only emerged as head of police in Saigon, but also has under his command crack troops, including marines, for merly bossed by General Dinh. That isn't all.

Major General Tran Van Don, another top junta leader, who is close to Xuan, now has the new title of commander-in-chief of all South Vietnamese armed forces, with authority to shift troops anywhere. In effect, that makes Xuan the military ruler both of Saigon, the capital, and the rest of the country as well.

Barring another upheaval, he can be expected to use this strategic power for his own ends and aggrandizement.

That doesn't bode well for future U.S. relations with South Vietnam.

Xuan, who personally killed former President Diem and his powerful brother Ngo Dinh Nhu, is strongly French-oriented. He is French-educated and trained, and has close ties with French officials in Saigon and military authorities in Paris.

He boasts of corresponding with General de Gaulle.

A Close-up Of The Junta — Xuan isn't the only member of the junta more pro-French than pro-U.S. — which is expending more than $300 million a year in South Vietnam.

Virtually all the ruling generals are the same.

A penetrating report on the junta, prepared by U.S. intelligence authorities in South Vietnam, is arousing keen interest in congressional circles. Publishable highlights of this revealing study are as follows:

"The military junta, composed of 22 generals, is French-trained and mostly substantially pro-French. Most of the generals are products of the usual French military training, and none has demonstrated either outstanding leadership capabilities or the flexibility of thinking essential for conducting anti-guerrilla operations.

"Several of the generals are imbued with political ambitions, and there is substantial distrust among them of each other. As a result, each and every decision of the government is subject to debate by the full junta and a majority decision. No overall policies have been formulated, and the power of decision of the junta is heavily encumbered.

"The civil government, including the prime minister and cabinet, are French-trained civil servants and inclined to be favorable toward the French. Since this pro-French attitude prevails both in the junta and in the civil government, it is significant that De Gaulle continues to refuse recognition to the present South Vietnamese government. Since the coup, De Gaulle has substantially increased the size of his mission in North Vietnam and his influence in Cambodia.

"The three figures of significance within the junta are Major General Duong Van Minh, chairman of the Military Revolutionary Council, Major General Ton Thai Dinh, vice chairman, and General Mai Huu Xuan, commandant of the police in Saigon. General Minh, who is the senior general, is unimaginative and unlikely to emerge as a politically potent figure despite the fact that he is the senior military commander of the junta.

"The competition for leadership in the junta will probably resolve between General Dinh, who commands the security forces, and General Xuan, who commands the police. Of the two, Dinh is more reliable and pro-U.S. General Xuan is pro-French and considered treacherous."

Donnybrook
In 1204, a fair was established in the village of Donnybrook, now a part of Dublin, Ireland. Originally, the fair was devoted to business, serving as a place where merchants brought their goods to sell.

Over the years the business aspect declined and the event developed into a pleasure fair, increasing in boisterous activity until it was commonly accompanied by fighting and bloodshed.

The fair became so wild that it was discontinued in 1855. But long before then the term "Donnybrook fair" later shortened to "donnybrook," was applied to any riotous scene or brawl.

Dear Abby

'Nobody Is Perfek'

By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: My English teacher said we had to write a friendly letter to some person who lives in another city as a homework assignment, so this is what I wrote:

"Dear Abby: You are solving my problem without even noting it because I have to write a letter for my English assignment and I chose you to write to."

"I think your column is pretty good. I don't always agree with your answers but then nobody is perfek. I sure got to give you credit. It takes a lot of nerve to give those answers because you know what happens when you stick your nose in other people's business."

"Very truly yours,
"F" IN ENGLISH"

DEAR ABBY: Our 19-year-old daughter (whom I'll call Jane) is serious about a 24-year-old married man who is in the process of being divorced. They were married only five months. My problem is he spends every evening here with Jane because his lawyer told him he shouldn't be seen in public with another woman yet. Meanwhile, Jane and he are getting thicker and thicker and they are talking marriage. He is a gentleman and is well able to support Jane, and we like him, but I don't think it's right for them to be planning marriage until he is free to marry, do you? My husband says he is a lot better than most of the characters Jane has gone with and we should let them be. What do you think?

JANE'S MOTHER

HURT
DEAR HURT: Not necessarily. Shades insure privacy, and you shouldn't feel "hurt" if a neighbor evidences a desire for privacy. You have the same privilege.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HARD-OLD WHO TRAVELS": Don't worry. If a woman really loves a man, no other man can get within 100 feet of her.

Get it off your chest. For a personal, unpublished reply, write to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

County, before more than 200 members.

The FOP Lodge in Hazleton, the lodge to which most of the State Police in this area are members, met last night.

Trooper John Barone, stationed at the Fern Ridge substation and president of the Hazleton Lodge, last night said, "I cannot speak for the lodge nor the members at this time. I can say that the subject will be discussed by the membership tonight, but what the outcome will be I do not know. However, after the meeting is over I can be contacted and I will tell you what the final outcome of the discussion was."

His Transfers

Harrington lashed out at Purdy's recent transfer of 85 men, some of them to stations far away from home. This, he said, is contrary to a campaign promise of Gov. William W. Scranton.

"The morale is ruined," Harrington said, "experienced men are quitting and state policemen no longer are dedicated to their job."

Harrington, who frequently is at odds with the way the state police force is run, suggested that local lodges contact state representatives demanding the legislative inquiry.

Settlement Of $1,000 In $75,000 Suit

SCRANTON — Counsel for the Buck Hill Falls Co. made a $1,000 settlement with M. Elizabeth Brenner of Brooklyn, N.Y., who was suing the company for $75,000 for injuries she allegedly received at The Inn in 1961.

The case was being heard before Federal Judge William J. Nealon and a jury in Scranton on Tuesday when the settlement was made.

After Atty. Edwin Krawitz of Stroudsburg, counsel for the plaintiff, rested his case, Atty. Hugh J. McMenamin of Scranton, representing Buck Hill, moved for a directed verdict to take the case from the jury.

Judge Nealon heard lengthy arguments on the motions in his chambers and as he pondered a decision, opposing counsel agreed on the settlement figure.

The Brooklyn woman sought damages for serious injuries she allegedly suffered when she slipped and fell while a guest at The Inn on Aug. 10, 1961.

Historical Society To Get Reports

STROUDSBURG — Robert B. Haigh, president of the Monroe County Historical Society, announced last night that the society's annual business meeting Saturday at 2:30 p.m. at the Stroud Community House, will feature reports by the curator, Mrs. Horace G. Walters, the treasurer, Mrs. Robert Haigh, the program committee chairman, Horace G. Walters, and the resolutions committee chairman, Dr. Robert Brown.

A nominating committee, composed of Dr. John C. Appel, Dr. Nathan G. Meyer, and Dr. LeRoy J. Koehler, will present the slate of new officers and directors. A social hour will follow the meeting.

Haigh also announced that reservations for the annual dinner, which will be held Wednesday, Jan. 15 at 6:30 p.m. at the Penn-Stroud Hotel, may be made with Mrs. James N. Canfield or Mrs. Robert B. Haigh.

Dr. Paul A. W. Wallace, noted authority on Pennsylvania Indians, will speak on "The Delaware Indians as Women and Men."

Wool Filing Deadline Jan. 31

STROUDSBURG — Farmers have until the end of January to file applications for 1963 marketing year payments under the National Wool Act. A. W. Martin, chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation, Monroe County Committee, reminded producers yesterday.

He emphasized that January 31, 1964 is the last day for accepting payment applications in connection with marketings of either wool or lambs during 1963.

Since this is several months earlier than under previous wool programs, Martin asked producers to avoid possible confusion by filing their applications on completed sales as soon as possible.

Martin points out that the 1963 marketing year under the wool program ended the last day of December 1963. Future wool marketing years will be for 12 months and will coincide with the calendar year. The January 31, 1964 deadline for filing 1963 applications for a month following the end of the marketing year.

The 1963 program payments, which probably will begin in April — will cover shorn wool during the 9-month period, April 1, 1963 through December 31, 1963. Later marketings will be eligible for payments for the 1964 marketing year, which began the first of the year.

Monroe Extension Adds 4-H Automotive Project

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Cooperative Extension Service has added the 4-H Automotive project to its 1964 4-H program. The new project will give prospective drivers a broader understanding of the use of automobiles, their care and operation. However, the program will not teach driving.

Young boys and girls, 14 years of age or older, are invited to join the new program. A special invitation is offered to young people who have not been active in other 4-H activities to join this group.

The program consists of three units, planned to cover a three year period. The initial unit deals with automobile safety and the fundamentals of care and operation. Subsequent units are helpful to the beginning driver, and advanced work can be useful in the selection of a car or in providing career guidance.

The automotive club will be unusually active and interest-

House Of The Week

If you economize in building new home, you'd expect to give up something somewhere. But you don't have to.

In this ranch house, H-10 in the House of the Week Series, you can have your economy cake and still keep plenty of room to eat it in.

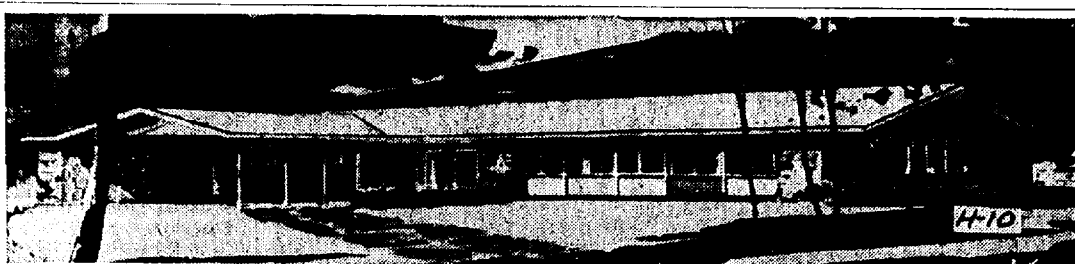

Architect Samuel Paul has built economy into a spacious 8-room design by sticking to a rectangular shape. This allows a simpler framing system. Further economies have been achieved by adding an attractive carport instead of a garage and not digging a basement. Wide use of masonry also cuts down maintenance.

Yet there are many bonus features: a family room that opens onto a screened porch and can be joined with it in summer through sliding doors; dining and living rooms kept out of the traffic flows and a kitchen that opens through a serving area to breakfast bar and the family room.

The basic shape of the house also means it can fit comfortably into a 75-foot lot yet a spacious layout is keyed to privacy. Window exposure is largely into the back and front yards. A novel inset on the gable end of the house permits cross ventilation in the two larger bedrooms yet windows face each other instead of the neighbors.

The house measures 59 feet three inches by 56 feet five inches enclosing 1801 square feet, four bedrooms, porch, patio and two baths.

some expanse along one side of the living room and out into the yard where it shields one end of the patio. There is also access from the living room into the back porch.

Kitchen work is facilitated by generous use of counter tops as well as a walk-in storage closet handy but out of the way. The closet opens off the combination mud-laundry room.

There are two baths with a double wash basin in one for multi-child use.

QUESTION: We have strip vinyl on two floors. Due to some remodeling that has been done, it is badly marked up. We would like to change to vinyl tiles but don't like the idea of removing the old flooring. Can we cement the new tiles directly to the strip vinyl and will it hold?

ANSWER: Any time you cement resilient tiles over old flooring, laid over a regular wood floor, you risk the possibility that the previous material will come unstuck and take the tiles with it. However, we have seen several installations, made several years ago, and they are still in excellent shape.

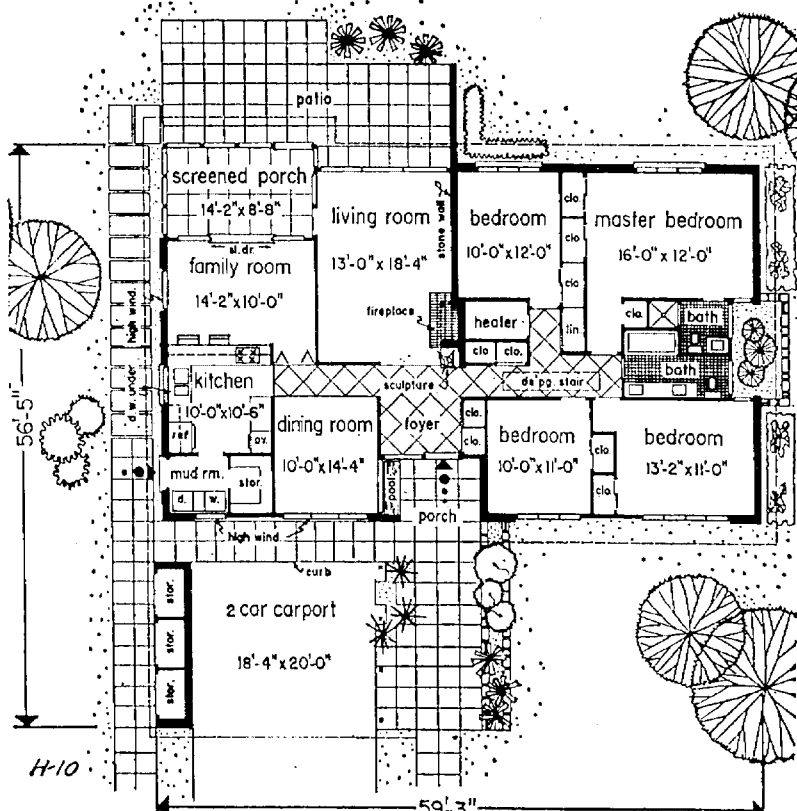

It's a calculated risk, but will work if the old flooring is still solidly attached. Nobody can tell you much about your particular case unless he makes an on-the-spot inspection and, even then, he can make only an educated guess.

One possibility is to drive several dozen nails, separated at fairly even intervals, into the old flooring, being certain that it takes hold in the wooden floor. This may eliminate future trouble if the old cement should come loose at a few points.

The only certain way is to install plywood or hardboard underlayment over the old floor, nailing it solidly. The new tiles then can be placed on the underlayment with no danger that they will loosen.

QUESTION: We are thinking about putting down what our dealer calls solid vinyl tiles on two rooms in our house. We have radiant heating and are worried about whether this will affect the tiles. Our neighbor says he thinks it will, our dealer says it won't. Who is right?

ANSWER: Your dealer wins this one. Solid vinyl tile is a good heat conductor and will not be affected by the higher temperatures. Be sure the tiles are put down on a smooth floor, whether it is concrete, wood or any other material. Nail heads, ridges and other imperfections will mar the underside of the tiling and show up at a later time.

FLOOR PLANS: The 1801 square feet of this ranch are arranged in a rectangular shape to give maximum size and privacy on a 75-foot front lot. Both living and family rooms have access to porch for expanded summer living.

By ANDY LANG
Resilient floor tiles continue to rank high on the list of best-selling do-it-yourself materials. Their continued popularity is due to their ease of application, even by those who find other handyman chores too difficult to tackle.

Here are some facts about the better-known varieties of resilient floor tiles.

ASPHALT — Low in cost and wears well. Can be used in below-ground levels and on concrete surfaces. Should not be used outdoors where there are temperature extremes. Must not be cleaned or polished with any product containing oils or solvents. Special types of asphalt tile are grease-proof.

VINYL — Flexible and durable. Resistant to acids, grease, oil and stains. Comes in a wide variety of sparkling colors. Most manufacturers recommend occasional waxing for appearance and protection.

RUBBER — Also flexible. Easy to walk on and virtually noiseless. Resistant to acids and most stains. Almost slip-proof. Should not be cleaned or polished with products containing solvents. Inclined to fade when exposed continuously to bright sunlight.

CORK — Easy to walk on. Has a luxurious appearance. Excessive use of water should be avoided. May or may not be waxed. Penetrating floor sealer sometimes recommended for easier maintenance.

LINOLEUM — Economical and easy to apply. Available in a wide range of colors and patterns. Should not be varnished or lacquered.

In laying any kind of floor tiles, you can hardly go wrong unless you disregard the manufacturer's instructions regarding the application of the adhesive. It makes a difference how much adhesive is applied and how long the manufacturer tells you to wait before placing the tiles on the adhesive.

The most common mistake of the amateur is to apply too much adhesive, which later will result in a seepage through the tile joints. Aside from that, putting down floor tiles is easy.

Fabulous Fabrics Imported For Simple Spring Splendor

By Bobby Westbrook

Daily Record Family Fare Editor

NEW YORK — Don't wait until 1965 to buy that Spring suit you've been saving up for.

That was one practical tip the nation's fashion press picked up for themselves at fashion press week. Vincent Monte-Sano of Monte-Sano and Pruzen gave the clue in answering a question from the audience about whether prices have gone up this Spring.

They haven't because the producers have absorbed the increased cost of material. However, the union contracts are to be re-negotiated next year and with the increase in the cost of living the cost of labor will undoubtedly go up, and with it the cost of clothes throughout the industry.

Practical People

With all the talk of inspiration, artistry, and creativity, it is easy enough to forget that these are also very practical people. Creation is at once the reward and the risk which couture designers take. As the executive editor of Glamour magazine, sitting at the same table at Ship 'n Shore's luncheon pointed out, neither designers nor fashion writers can make the public accept a fashion the public doesn't like.

Couture designers take the risk in sending up trial balloons. If a new fashion captures the imagination's fancy, the mass producers follow suit. If it doesn't, the designers suffer, not only in their pocketbooks but in their reputations.

This Spring and Summer, they are playing it cozy, consolidating the changes made last Fall and moving cautiously to new things.

They are not startling changes but they are there, as the Monte-Sano and Pruzen collection proved.

Bold Shaping

It featured the prouder shoulder-line — a bold shaping of the shoulders into a melon curve from a dropped and collarless round neckline. The shaping is effected by sleeves seamed on the diagonal. A half-melon curve extends the shoulderline of bare armed dresses and almost sleeveless jackets worn over dresses with sleeves.

There is no who'll-buy-my-violets feeling about the haughty new shoulder line in the Originals collection of coats, either. Here the big news came in new fabrics. Light-weight wool crepes and silks that look as elegant as evening coats have been bonded to foam linings resulting in coats that have body, line, almost no weight, and are waterproof to boot.

Out On A Limb

If famous designers often go out on a limb with new fashions, they also maintain a continuity which means that their fashions stay in style for many, many years. As the commentator for Hattie Carnegie pointed out, the showing of Carnegie suits is designed to permit a customer to build up a collection rather than to discard their old favorites.

Typical of the Carnegie collection were the matching coats and suits which this year are softer and more feminine. Jackets are sometimes belted, sometimes a bit longer, and always detailed with bonbon buttons, slanting buttonholes, slick vents, and real or make-believe pockets and tabs to complete the picture of more shape.

Can't Copy Fabric

One of the things which the mass production market can not copy, of course, is the fabric, collected from all over the world or often woven to the designers own specifications. Always famous for his fabrics is Samuel Winston. This year his designer, Roxane, has used them with a defined shape within a rippling outline. Bias cut fronts on suits and dresses coupled with a straight line of the back express her feelings for a more fitted style which still remains supple and easy. The three-quarter to seven-eighths-length coat costumes lead her parade of street looks for Spring.

Nat Kaplan also stresses fabric, with dresses that could be carried in a handbag. A navy and white checkerboard print skimmer is so soft and pliable it folds into almost handkerchief size. Narrow-sleeved concise costumes can be worn under a coat early in the season and alone later.

Donald Brooks for Townley doesn't even require the pocketbook for a woman to change her mind right in the middle of a party. His hostess pajamas with matching overskirt reverse from black to white in Belles of Ireland printed silk.

Party For Press

Speaking of parties, fashion auxiliary members go all out in wining and dining the fashion press. Maradel Products entertained them at breakfast with champagne and Cassini, a potent combination at any time of day. Vera Maxwell brought a whole hothouse of fresh flowers for her luncheon showing.

Noel Coward's "The Girl Who Came to Dinner" may not be the critic's choice but the fashion press enjoyed the music and the switch from straight fashions enormously as the guests of Ship 'n Shore who capitalized on the catchy music to parody the songs for the showing of their blouses at a luncheon the next day.

It was chateaubriand for dinner on two consecutive nights with Corfam Pomerie Material (that's man-made leather) as hosts at the Mercury Ballroom at the New York Hilton one night and Sears Roebuck at the Persian Room of the Plaza the next night.

Fashion Sidelights

Sears Roebuck featured it's catalogue cover girl and designer hats which now can be ordered by mail from the remotest hamlet and it also featured Leslie Uggams whose songs kept the audience calling for more.

In between there have been cocktail parties by such groups as Callaway Mills in lower Manhattan with fashions for the home in carpets and towels, and Elizabeth Arden with cosmetic and beauty at her Fifth Ave. Salon.

It's a wearing schedule but the fashion press, willing to make any sacrifice to bring the news to their readers is sticking with it. They don't have time to apply the three sets of false eyelashes Elizabeth Arden decrees and hardly time to apply lipstick even in her new Wild Pink, but they find no trouble at all in acquiring wild pink eyeballs.

Through which they plan for your sake to view the World's Fair tomorrow.

SPRING COAT — Original produces this open-throated coat of pale blue Italian mohair for the New York Couture Group's Spring showing. Two sets of vertical pockets and a flat ring collar add trim detail.

SANDPIPER SUIT — Donald Brooks brings a suit of sand and black to the Townley collection of the New York Couture Group. The Jacket is double-breasted and features a pull-through belt. The skirt is imported wool. A sleeveless silk paisy blouse in red, white and blue matches the Adolfo snood.

COATDRESS — Nat Kaplan shows the look of a coat for the New York Couture Group, double-breasted, in white basket weave wool, it is detailed with twin flap pockets, high and low, and brass buttons.

EMBROIDERY AND TINSEL — Roxane of Samuel Winston's, uses silk floss, chenille and velvet flowers with tinsel to dazzle pink net and chiffon for this full-length evening dress. New York Couture Group, photographed in apartment of Barbara Dorn, interior designer.

ENTER FLOATING — Buttercup yellow silk chiffon is used by Hattie Carnegie of the New York Couture Group for this yard-upon-yard evening gown. Deeper yellow chiffon flowers compose the swirling boa.

M. Fontanella Gives Annual GOP Report

An opening prayer delivered by Mrs. Martha Evans of Monticello on September 23, 1963 at the founding of the National Federation of Republican Women in Chicago, was read by Mrs. Hugo Seliger at the first annual business meeting of the T.L.C. Council of Republican Women recently. Officers were elected. They were: Mrs. Mervin F. Fontanella; president, Mrs. Walter Davis; vice-president, Mrs. John Bowman, secretary, and Mrs. Hugo Seliger treasurer. The state council pledge was given and council bylaws, as adopted May 1, 1963, were re-read. The president gave the annual report.

The T.L.C. Council was represented by delegates and the president at all 1963 activities sponsored by the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women; the N.E. Regional Membership Conference in Tunkhannock; Crusade Constitution in Harrisburg; the N. E. Political Activities Conference in Scranton; and the annual State Convention in Harrisburg.

There were seven regular and three board meetings. Council members worked at the polls at all three elections primary, special and general. T.L.C. members also covered Bartlett to Congress Headquarters in Stroudsburg one day each week prior to special election.

The council borrowed flags, bunting and decorations to assist the Young Women's Republican's four-state conference in April.

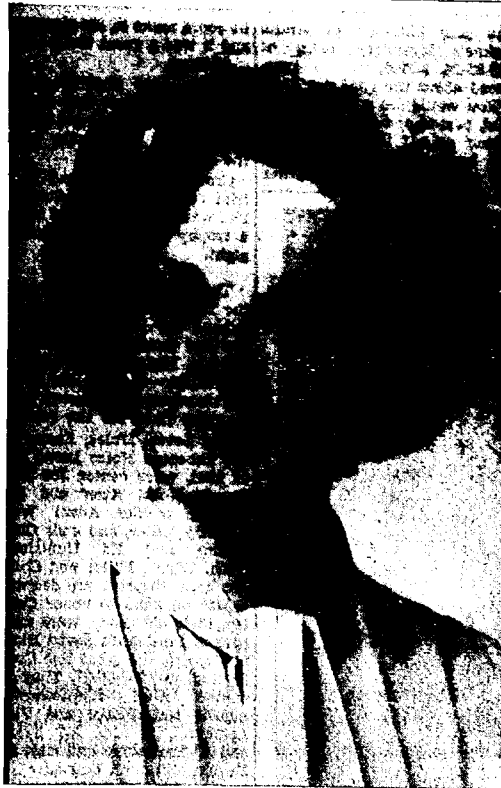

Following the workshop in June in reference to the State Constitution, the president wrote letters to the editor of the Daily Record which were published August 17, October 12 and November 2. A letter written to columnist Mason Denton was given mention in his column of October 22 and a portion of it included.

Special picture coverage was given telephone chairman, Mrs. Frank Faulk by The Daily Record, after the birth of their seventh child in July. A "baby shower" was sent to her in the hospital. Profits of projects were used to reimburse delegates who had attended the statewide activities throughout the year.

Mrs. Fontanella expressed pleasure at the Christmas program in the P.P. & L. Service, the instructing by Mrs. Betty Noack and the decision of members to send their gifts to two shut-ins instead of a usual gift exchange one of whom was associate member Mrs. Elizabeth Schmalz.

The president also emphasized her gratitude for the faithful and productive work of the active members even though total membership has not gone beyond the 25 member minimum necessary to operate as a council affiliated with the state council and the national federation.

She acknowledged much credit for the year's success goes to Bobby Westbrook and the staff at The Daily Record; and to Sally Ferrebee and the staff.

Miss Leila Bonner Edgerton

Miss L. B. Edgerton To Wed Richard Trismen In Spring

Buck Hill Falls — Mr. and Mrs. Richard Edgerton of 293 Pleasant Lane, Buck Hill Falls, announce the engagement of their daughter, Leila Bonner Edgerton, to Richard Frederick Trismen, son of Mrs. Frederick Trismen and the late Mr. Trismen of Winter Park, Fla.

Miss Edgerton is a graduate of the Baldwin School, Bryn Mawr, and Connecticut College for Women. She is employed at the Chilton Publishing Co., Philadelphia.

Mr. Trismen is a graduate of the radio station WVPO.

Special thanks were recorded in the minutes to Mrs. Thornton Counterman and Mrs. Albert Storm for their typing during the special election campaign; Mrs. F. Lee Banta for her hosting in October at the covered dish luncheon with guests Bobby Westbrook and Republican women candidates; Mrs. Mary Emma T. Garcia, Mrs. Jeannette Batory and Mrs. Ruth Shutter, and associate member Mrs. Esther Fry for her donations in the November gift and rummage sale.

The next meeting will be Wednesday, Feb. 5, as a Valentine Breakfast for members and their guests with installation of officers and a report of the 1963 State Convention.

Ladies Nite Out; Light Project Tops Barrett Club's Agenda

Mountainhome — At its January meeting at Onawa Lodge, the Barrett Community Club announced plans for their second Spring "Ladies Nite Out." Last year's affair is being repeated due to popular request.

Chairman for the event featuring cards, entertainment, refreshments and prizes, to be held March 4, is Mrs. Ernest LaBar. Her committee members are Mrs. Sherwood Coffman and Mrs. Herbert Larsen.

The place of the spring party will be announced at a later date.

During the business meeting, conducted by Mrs. Harold Kreck, president, the club voted to contribute $100 to a current welfare project in the township. It also appointed Mrs. Sherwood Coffman to serve as the club's representative on a township welfare group now being organized.

The Clubwoman Magazine was authorized to be sent to 100 per cent of the club membership for one year, upon recommendation of the membership committee. Mrs. Ernest LaBar and Mrs. Herbert Larsen.

that valuation, $2,000,000 is Buck Hill Falls Co., and Skytop Club.

She said the real estate assessment for 1,231 resident taxpayers, except Buck Hill Falls Co., and Skytop, is $3,265, or in round figures, $3,300. This does not include Buck Hill Falls Co. or Skytop Club.

Mrs. Brush added, "If the streetlighting proposal submitted by P. P. & L. at a net annual cost of $4,517.82, (round figures $4,500), is accepted in its entirety, the annual tax cost for each resident taxpayer would be 50 to 60 cents on each $1,000 of assessed valuation of real estate property." "In other words," she continued, "if the proposal is accepted as submitted, the annual tax cost to the average resident taxpayer would be between $1.66 and $1.98 yearly — less than a carton of cigarettes."

Cheap Insurance

"Even a resident business taxpayer whose business assessment is $9,000, would pay only about $3.00 yearly — cheap insurance against burglary and vandalism," she pointed out.

The club approved the type of light suggested in the streetlighting proposal, which is mercury vapor, noting that throughout cities and highways in the U. S. the incandescent light is fast becoming obsolete as a nifty entire cities are making transitions to mercury vapor. A member of the Streetlighting Committee advised the club that the town of Gouldsboro, north of Barrett Township, is converting its incandescent lamps to mercury vapor, which is a daylight type of light.

Members of the club voted to attend the January meeting of the Township Supervisors in a group for the purpose of urging the Supervisors to protect the public and their property by installing streetlights for the assurance of more traffic safety and crime prevention in its community.

We don't promise that it will take the place of a cruise, but a preview of coming fashions will give a hopeful lift to the morale. After all, when the cruise clothes come into town, can Spring in the Poconos be far behind?

P. S. If you really are going on a cruise you can report first hand on how effective the new, more feminine look really is.

You don't need to go to New York to see the coming trends in new fashions for Spring and Summer because the new trends are coming here in the resort wear we're expecting any day. While not all of us are lucky enough to be planning a winter cruise or Southern sojourn, Spring and Summer will eventually come to the Poconos and a lot of foresighted women always take the pick of the resort and cruise clothes early just to be ready.

Like the first robin, the first summer clothes always are perkier, more to be cherished than the ones that come in the full flood of spring migration.

So to see the coming colors in all their brilliance, the cerise, Kelly greens, asbino, citrons and sunny yellows and brighter-than-ever navy blues, the new, more feminine silhouettes with waistlines and ruffles and capes; the Sunday-go-to-meeting little girl look, come on in and help us admire the new arrivals.

We don't promise that it will take the place of a cruise, but a preview of coming fashions will give a hopeful lift to the morale. After all, when the cruise clothes come into town, can Spring in the Poconos be far behind?

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

Saying, "I'll never eat again as long as I live" at the close of a big meal is something like pledging eternal love by saying, "I'll never love again—I couldn't possibly." At the time it sounds marvelous . . . dramatic . . . and ever so honest. Then what happens? First thing you know you are hungry; or are discovering that someone you'd never noticed before is mightily attractive.

I would have vowed, along with 24 girls from our Tea Room staff, that I'd never need a mouthful of food again after Blanche Mackey's sumptuous dinner party of Tuesday night . . . but just a few minutes ago, I returned to my desk after enjoying a sandwich and coffee at our Fountain. That Blanche!—what a gal she is. Not only is she friendly, likeable, and sincerely interested in people, their problems and their triumphs, she is also just about the finest cook for miles around, the gabbiest female ever, and as versatile a woman as any I've ever known. I can't think of anyone who would do a better job of managing our Wyckoff Tea Room. In fact, I think it might be a smart move if we were to open a Tea Room annex in the Mackey home.

There's this though . . . Blanche could never cater to dieters. Her tastiest dishes are lavish with cream cheese, sour cream, crab meat—and here I go working up an appetite! Incidentally, when Blanche returns from her vacation this coming Monday she'll be arranging a series of 99c specials for the pleasure of our Monday night customers.

Had I been entertaining 25 persons at dinner, I'd have been in a dither for days, but not Blanche. She even found time for a nap the afternoon of her party, and she looked chic and unruffled in knitted hostess slacks, blouse, and crisp little apron.

Another who entertains with the same marvelous ease is Ann George, whose picture-book home at White Heron Lake is the setting for everything from holiday parties to joyous summer picnics. One of the most spectacular decorations in Ann's home is a tremendously heavy shield of brass through which run five or six huge swords. The shield is engraved with scenes of decisive battles in Spanish history, and the swords are reproductions of those wielded by Spanish kings. Some are so heavy they can be lifted only by a strong man using both hands. Those knights of old must have really been something!

Seeing this handsome conversation piece over the mantel in Ann's living room, I am reminded once again of the elegance of brass, and also the wonders of travel. Ann and Bert had a grand time collecting prized possessions while seeing the world . . . and our Wyckoff Travel Bureau could open the same treasure chest of opportunity and adventure to you and to me. In the meantime, non-travelers can buy their brass in our International Gift Center here at Wyckoff's.

Attention all Artists: MONDAY is the deadline for entries in our 27th Annual Wyckoff Art Show to open Wednesday, January 15th in our Keystone Room on the second floor.

Athletic activity resumes tomorrow at East Stroudsburg State College following a two-week holiday layoff.

Coach Ken Sisson's hoop quintet journeys to Bloomsburg to meet the powerful Huskies while the matmen of Coach Red Witman will be entertained at Lebanon Valley College.

The Warrior eagles will be striving to hit the win column following a three-game losing streak before vacation. Bloomsburg is currently 4-1 in the Pennsylvania State Colleges Athletic Conference, compared to the tough task of smothering the scoring efforts of Bloom's Bob Herzog, lanky senior who ranks among the league's top point-getters with a 15-point average.

Witman's wrestlers, currently 3-0 on the season, hope to keep their perfect record intact at Lebanon Valley. Five ESSC grapplers still remain undefeated in dual meet competition—Jan Duff (135), Bud Lawrence (147), Chet Dalgewicz (157), Dick Bell (167) and heavyweight Roy Miller. Bob Guzzo (133) also is undefeated in two matches. He has missed the last three bouts due to a knee injury.

Fishing license No. 507 has been granted by the Pennsylvania Fish Commission to Wilford Tilwick, owner of Saylor's Lake Fishing Assn. Richard W. Kirchhofer, president of the association, notes that Saylor's Lake can now "come to any agreements to improve and regulate the season, species, number of fish and size."

Under this regulation, Kirchhofer adds, the association is now able to afford fishermen "more and larger trout, 12 inches upward, six trout per day and five bass 12 inches upward per day."

The regulation also allows a total catch of 36 blue gills, sunfish, perch, channel cats, bullheads and calico bass per day. This regulated lake setup also will give the bass and trout sportsmen a season that can well start in March, if the ice breaks up and the boats are ready, until late in November—weather permitting—since resident or non-resident anglers may fish without licenses. No trout stamps will be required, either, and this, says Kirchhofer, "will be a saving for the membership and sportsmen."

Owner Tilwick also has this opinion to offer: "The Saylor's Lake Fishing Assn. for present members and non-members, and the sportsmen in general, has more to offer and give than any other setup, state-owned or private."

SPORTS MAIL BOX—Penn State's road-weary basketball squad, back from a trip that saw the Nittany Lions win the Motor City Classic in Detroit but lose to Toledo, will travel to Pittsburgh tomorrow in the first of four more road games.

The Motor City triumphs over pre-tournament favorite Western Michigan and host Detroit, give the Lions a 4-3 record to take to Pitt. They also own wins over Syracuse and Maryland with losses to Duke, North Carolina State and Toledo.

State's chances of upsetting Pitt rest with Captain Bob Donato and junior Bob Weiss, a pair of guards (labeled by Coach John Egli as "one of the finest backcourt combinations in the state.")

Bob DeGrosso of Penn Argy, a former "Brile Star Athlete of the Year" in The Daily Record coverage area, is among 25 athletes at Penn State who have been honored for their "enemy" mannerisms each week engaging their teammates in scrimmages. Coach Rip Engle handed out the praise.

The Nittany Lion grid pilot named DeGrosso among the members of the "foreign" squad whom he said "made a real contribution to the success of our football season by the way in which they handled their chores each week."

"These players never made road trips, they seldom suit up for home games, and they get no publicity," said Engle, "but without their playing the role of our opponents in practice sessions we could never begin to get ready for each game. They were a valuable but unsung group and we appreciated them."

Dempsey No Houdini

Another KO For Willard

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If Jack Kearns slipped plaster of paris into Jack Dempsey's boxing gloves—as Kearns' memoirs claim—it must have been the greatest sleight of hand trick since Houdini.

Another man came forward Thursday to deny the story, as Dempsey had earlier.

And Dempsey said he always taped his own hands for a fight. The memoirs of the late Kearns, published in Sports Illustrated magazine, claimed that he used plaster of paris in the bandages on Dempsey's hands when Dempsey took the heavyweight title from Jess Willard in 1919.

"Nothing illegal," Leonard Sacks, former business manager for Dempsey, said he and Jimmy de Forest, Willard's trainer and chief second, both watched the taping and there was no possible chance that anything illegal could have been done.

Sacks also said that Dempsey always bandaged his own hands, and used what was customary then, black bicycle tape over heavy gauze.

Kearns claimed in his memoirs that Dempsey knew nothing about the trick.

Willard, 82, who lives near Los Angeles, said he had been trying for almost 45 years to get the story printed "but nobody would believe me. My jaw is still caved in from the beating that fellow gave me with sement on his hands."

"Ruthless Lie" Sacks called the story "a preposterous and absolute and ruthless lie."

He said he and Dempsey had a personal falling out and haven't talked since 1958, and "there's no reason to inject myself into this except I feel very keenly about it."

Dempsey said he heard the same story 20 years ago and denied it then.

"If any plaster of paris was used I certainly was not aware of it. After all, how much of it could be sprinkled on top of the tape? In the first place, the plaster of paris would not have had time to set. I certainly wasn't that stupid that Kearns could have pulled that type of trick on me."

Grid Heroics Fewer Today, Says Crowley

NEW YORK (AP) — Football has become so high-pressured and specialized that it no longer has room for individual heroics on the field, Sleepy Jim Crowley, one of Notre Dame's famed Four Horsemen, said Thursday.

"I think that is what I miss more than anything," the one-time star halfback of Knute Rockne's legendary team of 1922-23-24 added, as he reminisced about the good old days.

"You would see a player, battered, beaten and dog-tired, pick himself up off the ground and limp back to the huddle. The fans always wondered whether he could make it. He always did, and it was a great thrill for the spectators."

Today, they push fresh guys in and out so fast that the fans have little chance to get to know any of the individuals, except the quarterback."

Crowley, now 61 and industrial commissioner in Scranton, Pa., was in New York to receive a trophy at a dinner Thursday night.

Fabled Backfield

The other three members of the fabled backfield which was dubbed the Four Horsemen by the late Grantland Rice—Elmer Layden, Harry Stuhldreher and Don Miller—and the four surviving members of the Seven Mules were on hand for the occasion.

The Seven Mules, linemen of the unbeaten Notre Dame team of 1924, were center Joe Bach, guards Nobel Kizer and John Weibel, tackles Adam Walsh and Rip Miller, and ends Chuck Collins and Ed Hunsinger.

Bach, Walsh, Miller and Collins are here, the rest are deceased.

Also on hand to honor Crowley, their old coach, were members of Fordham's Seven Blocks of Granite, the great line Crowley had in 1935-36-37. They are center Alex Wojciechowski, guards Nat Pierce and Vince Lombardi, tackles Ed Franco and Al Barbatsky and ends Leo Pequin and John Druze.

Prefers College

"I now see about two or three football games a year, but I watch both college and pro games on television," Crowley said. "I must confess I am one of the few who like the college game better."

"There is too much passing in the pros. I like to see a little running, and the colleges give it to me."

Crowley recalled that the fabulous Fighting Irish team of the Four Horsemen and Seven Mules was a comparatively small bunch by present-day standards.

Lightweights

"I weighed only 162," he said, "and so did Layden and Miller. Stuhldreher was even lighter at 158. Our biggest linemen were 190-Bach, Walsh and Miller."

"We didn't pass the ball as much then, naturally. The ball was fat, almost like a balloon, and all you could do was lob it. Now the ball is shaped like a rocket. A quarterback throws it like a third baseman in baseball pegging to first base—and there's less chance of interception."

time star halfback of Knute Rockne's legendary team of 1922-23-24 added, as he reminisced about the good old days.

"You would see a player, battered, beaten and dog-tired, pick himself up off the ground and limp back to the huddle. The fans always wondered whether he could make it. He always did, and it was a great thrill for the spectators."

Today, they push fresh guys in and out so fast that the fans have little chance to get to know any of the individuals, except the quarterback."

Crowley, now 61 and industrial commissioner in Scranton, Pa., was in New York to receive a trophy at a dinner Thursday night.

Fabled Backfield

The other three members of the fabled backfield which was dubbed the Four Horsemen by the late Grantland Rice—Elmer Layden, Harry Stuhldreher and Don Miller—and the four surviving members of the Seven Mules were on hand for the occasion.

The Seven Mules, linemen of the unbeaten Notre Dame team of 1924, were center Joe Bach, guards Nobel Kizer and John Weibel, tackles Adam Walsh and Rip Miller, and ends Chuck Collins and Ed Hunsinger.

Bach, Walsh, Miller and Collins are here, the rest are deceased.

Also on hand to honor Crowley, their old coach, were members of Fordham's Seven Blocks of Granite, the great line Crowley had in 1935-36-37. They are center Alex Wojciechowski, guards Nat Pierce and Vince Lombardi, tackles Ed Franco and Al Barbatsky and ends Leo Pequin and John Druze.

Prefers College

"I now see about two or three football games a year, but I watch both college and pro games on television," Crowley said. "I must confess I am one of the few who like the college game better."

"There is too much passing in the pros. I like to see a little running, and the colleges give it to me."

Crowley recalled that the fabulous Fighting Irish team of the Four Horsemen and Seven Mules was a comparatively small bunch by present-day standards.

Four-Game Card For Schoolboys

STROUDSBURG — A pair of teams seeking first wins of the 1963-64 basketball season clash tonight in the Le-N loop with a four-game card in the Pocono-Slate Valley area.

Pleasant Valley, winless after two starts, and Pocono Mountain, winless in eight battles, meet in the Swiftwater court with the first sweet taste of victory for one at stake.

Coach Bill Fren's Bears have dropped both games to Wallenpaupack and Bangor, while the Cards of Coach Allen Shollenberger have lost to Stroud Union, Palmerton, Hellertown, West Scranton, East Stroudsburg, Nazareth, Scranton Prep and Notre Dame.

Stroud Union's Mountaineers entertain Northampton in a Le-high Valley League struggle in other action, while Fountain Hill is at Bangor and Southern Lehigh at Pen Argy in pair of inter-division Lehigh - Northampton League contests.

Moscow Carries Johnson Talk

MOSCOW (AP)—Moscow Radio and the official Soviet news agency Tass gave prominent play to President Johnson's State of the Union message.

On its midnight newscast, Moscow Radio, headed to listeners at home, gave a long summary of the major points of the President's speech. It was the longest single item on the cast.

Tass English-language service distributed a 400-word summary of the speech. But neither the radio nor Tass commented on what the President had to say.

Tass highlighted Johnson's pledge to carry out the plans and programs of the late President Kennedy "because they are right."

Cy Barrett Says

Just Start The Job

DEAR CY:

Several friends, who are in semi-command, paved the way for me to work for a large manufacturer, although I am 33 years old. I have always been in farming and want to be a success with this new job. The worry is I have no confidence in succeeding. How can I overcome the mental anguish of starting a new job? I feel your answer will mean the most to me.

FARMER

DEAR FARMER:

Confidence is belief in your abilities. This has to be nourished. Confidence can be compartmented in one line or transferred to other endeavors, as with many successful men and women. Having always been a farmer, it isn't weird that you lack confidence outside your specialty. When you plant corn, with every seed, sprout and golden ear, your confidence in farming grows. So it will be, with every move, in manufacturing.

Quit making a big deal of starting a new job. Most everyone shakes a little when they enter a strange company door. Hang up your coat and follow directions. Be adaptable, study your business, and overwork yourself. Soon you'll start in griping. Cheers! That's when you'll know new confidence is sprouting.

CY

DEAR CY:

I'm the forgetful type, and never send in warrant or guarantee cards when I buy household appliances. The part I am supposed to keep, I lose. If something goes haywire with my radio, t.v., washer or refrigerator, am I still covered? Your recent column didn't state whether manufacturers will make good on repairs when the buyer hasn't followed directions regarding these cards.

DEAR CY:

This town has a false set of values. Because I have done well in business and can afford to send my two boys through college, people feel they should be denied college scholarships. This is nonsense! If boys or girls have ability which entitles them to a scholarship, they should get the money. Both of my boys are in college on full scholarships, and it's a great credit to them. We live well, travel extensively for vacations, own fine cars, but scholarships are something my boys earned themselves.

CY

ence, has reorganized the Methodist charges of Tannersville and Cherry Valley.

The two larger charges have been divided into three smaller groups. They are the Tannersville, Kellersville and Cherry Valley charges.

Churches in the Tannersville charge are Tannersville Methodist Church, Wesley Chapel, Effort Methodist and Redders Methodist Churches. The Rev. Joseph Leggieri is the pastor.

The Rev. Laurence Young is pastor of the Kellersville charge. His churches include the Methodist Churches at Kellersville, Neola and McMichaels.

The Rev. David L. Fife is pastor of the Methodist Churches in Cherry Valley, Poplar Valley and Melhancy.

Please print this letter.

BAEDECKER

DEAR BAEDECKER:

If your strappings have savvy, let them star in grades and achievement at college. There's challenge galore for a youngster, without having to manufacture merit badges by taking money out of deserving poor boy's britches.

Fortunately, most schools closely screen parents of scholarship applicants. I harbor the quaint concept that contributors to scholarship funds don't aim to finance education for the dough-loaded.

CY

DEAR CY:

The national chain stores are giving us plenty of competition. We are a locally owned and operated store, having been in business for 31 years. What can we do to play up the local angle in our advertising?

PRESBERT

DEAR PRESBERT:

Sell your store as an important page in local history. Hammer across a slogan like: "Serving you best because Gunkville is our home, too." Besides featuring merchandise priced right, shake up with local public events in your advertising, such as promoting the vote in a school election. Occasionally feature a list of elected public officials and their addresses in horse-sized type. A tremendous number of people would notify politicians of their views if they could remember whom they elected.

'Paupack Prepares Move To New School'

NEWFOUNDLAND — Bus schedules, orientation of students and teaching staff, moving plans and progress reports highlighted a meeting of the Wallenpaupack Area Joint School Board at Hawley this week.

Fred Schoenagel, of Greentown, clerk of the works, reported that Unit B (classrooms) is practically ready for occupancy, and Unit A about three weeks' work away from completion.

Science and language laboratory equipment is being installed this week; bleachers, folding doors and basketball goals are installed; only minor items are still lacking.

Next week, the cafeteria staff for the new school will be brought to the Hawley school for a three-day orientation. The following week, Mrs. Siller, Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Billard and five new helpers will take over the present cafeteria.

Two "satellite" helpers, hired at the session, Mrs. Dorothy Hauser and Mrs. Catherine Bates, who are to be given a two-day orientation next week, will take over the Hawley cafeteria when the others move to the new building, and will cook and serve the meals to elementary students until the satellite program gets underway.

Mrs. Ethel Blewett was appointed to handle satellite funds.

Type A Luncheon
During the week before the new school opens, a Type A luncheon will be served to approximately 50 persons, among them members of the school board who are able to attend. A tentative date for this was set for February 1. Those who plan to participate were asked to call the school office or Bruce Worrell, cafeteria committee chairman.

Also near the end of January, the school board and their wives or husbands will be served a dinner in the new cafeteria.

The price of lunches for the new school was set at 30 cents for students; 40 cents for teachers.

Robert Frielag, of the White House Dairies, won the contract for satellite deliveries of meals, which will be prepared at the new school and delivered to Hawley elementary children.

The board approved a resolution to be forwarded to the Authority, recommending acceptance of the new building now, subject to completion of the building according to plans and specifications.

The board discussed financing of the remodeling of the Hawley School, and approved the issuance of general obligation bonds in an amount to be determined. Final plans for this project are expected to be ready for advertising at the February meeting and bids will be opened at the March meeting.

Shuttle Bus

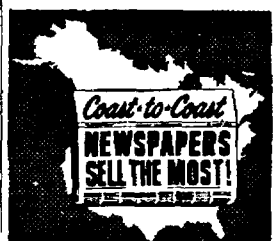

There was a discussion of the shuttle bus transportation and of regular bus schedules. A bank balance of $11,879.72 was reported by Mrs. Olive Murphy, treasurer.

It was reported that John Cunningham will begin his duties as janitor at the Southern Wayne School on January 20, and that Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Moraski, who have served as janitors at Southern Wayne, will take up their duties at the new school on Lake Wallenpaupack on January 27.

Joseph Strasser, science teacher at Hawley, was granted a three-month leave of absence.

On January 23, the seventh, eighth and ninth grade students at Hawley and Newfoundland will go to the new school to receive home room assignments and locker space. On January 24, the tenth, eleventh and twelfth graders will complete this activity. On January 24, school will be dismissed at 1 p.m. for a faculty meeting.

New French Course Set For ESSC

EAST STROUDSBURG — Dr. Ruth Kistler, head of the Foreign Language department at East Stroudsburg State College has announced that a special course in French will be taught during the second semester.

Because it is designed for teacher-in-service as well as East Stroudsburg State College students, the course will meet at 4 p.m. on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays. William Hope, a visiting professor from France, will teach the course.

The course is titled "Phonetics and Advanced Conversation." Mr. Hope has had much experience in teaching courses of this type as he taught French to Americans in France.

Dr. Kistler stated that the course as taught by Mr. Hope will be an opportunity for those who desire to perfect their spoken French.
